Jim was born in 1915 in the small town of Accrington, England. His father was a weaver, and his mother was a homemaker. Jim was the youngest of five children, and he grew up in a loving and supportive home. From a young age, Jim was fascinated by the world around him. He loved to read and explore, and he was always getting into trouble. When he was 16, Jim left school and joined the Royal Air Force. He served as a pilot during World War II, and he flew over 50 missions. After the war, Jim returned to England and worked as a test pilot. He also began to travel the world, and he visited over 100 countries. In 1953, Jim met his wife, Mary. They were married a year later, and they had two children. Jim and his family lived in England for several years, but they eventually moved to Canada. Jim continued to travel and explore throughout his life, and he even invented several new products. He died in 2012 at the age of 97.
