The author, John Stevens, was a young man when he was drafted into the army in 1967. He was sent to Vietnam and assigned to the 101st Airborne Division. Stevens spent the next year fighting in some of the most intense battles of the war, including the Tet Offensive and the Battle of Hamburger Hill.

Stevens' memoir is a raw and honest account of his experiences in Vietnam. He writes about the fear, the boredom, and the violence of war.

He also writes about the camaraderie he shared with his fellow soldiers and the lasting effects of the war on his life.

Rucksack Grunt Vietnam Veteran Memoir is a powerful and important book. It is a reminder of the sacrifices made by our veterans and the horrors of war. It is also a testament to the resilience of the human spirit.

Excerpt from Rucksack Grunt Vietnam Veteran Memoir

I remember the first time I saw a dead body. It was during the Tet Offensive in 1968. We were fighting in the city of Hue when we came across a group of Viet Cong who had been killed in a firefight. I had never seen anything like it before. The bodies were mangled and burned beyond recognition. I couldn't help but feel sick to my stomach.

I remember another time when we were on patrol in the jungle. We were ambushed by a group of North Vietnamese soldiers. I was shot in the leg and fell to the ground. As I lay there, I watched as my fellow soldiers were killed one by one. I was the only survivor.

I was lucky to make it home from Vietnam alive. But the war never really left me. I still have nightmares about it. I still feel guilty about the things I saw and did. But I'm also grateful for the experience. It taught me a lot about myself and about the world.
