Rediscovering a Lost Legacy

In the summer of 1915, Frank Glaser, a young and adventurous American, embarked on an extraordinary journey into the uncharted wilderness of Canada. Armed with a canoe, a rifle, and an unyielding spirit, he ventured into the heart of the Canadian wilderness, leaving behind a legacy that would remain lost for decades.

Frank Glaser's journal, chronicling his 55-day adventure, lay forgotten for nearly a century. In a remarkable turn of events, the journal was rediscovered in a dusty attic, its pages filled with vivid accounts of Glaser's encounters with wildlife, breathtaking landscapes, and the challenges of navigating the unforgiving wilderness.

A Journey Through Time

The rediscovery of Frank Glaser's journal has granted us an unprecedented glimpse into the past, offering a firsthand account of a wilderness expedition at a time when Canada's vast interior remained largely unexplored. Through Glaser's detailed descriptions, we become immersed in the sights, sounds, and experiences of this remarkable journey.

Glaser's journey took him through the heart of Canada's wilderness, from the rugged shores of Lake Superior to the pristine wilderness of Quetico Provincial Park. Along the way, he encountered a diverse tapestry of wildlife, including moose, wolves, and bears. He navigated treacherous rapids, portaged over rugged terrain, and reveled in the solitude of unspoiled nature.

A Testament to Resilience and Exploration

Frank Glaser's 1915 adventure was a testament to his resilience, determination, and unwavering passion for exploration. In a time when technology was limited and the wilderness held unknown dangers, Glaser's journey stands as a reminder of the human spirit's ability to overcome challenges and embrace the unknown.

Through his journal, Glaser becomes our guide, leading us through the untamed wilderness of yesteryear. His experiences offer valuable lessons in wilderness survival, the importance of perseverance, and the enduring power of human connection in the face of adversity.
